Dear Dr. Richter

This is to inform you that our University has purchased an IBM SPSS Software from Strategic Research and Development Center, Inc. with 30 licenses and training package for users.

The Research Center decided to distribute these licenses to various units of the university. A number of licenses (9), however, will be in the Research Center for use of the designated faculty researchers and other clientele. The distribution is as follows:

Unit	Number of Scans	Unit	Number of Scans
CYPRUS	1	Rossano	1
Research Center	9	Castrovilli	1
NORDIC	1	Henn	1
KMTC	1	T3	1
CEST	1	Urmo	1
CAS	1	Silvano	1
GATENBERG	1	Dessolez	1
CON	1	Castile City	1
CEMOS	1	CEO-SHES	1
CCU	1	CEO	1
CYBERG	1	OGS	1

In this regard, I would like to request that the designated faculty researchers and one representative each from other units be allowed to attend the two-day training to be held on March 18-19, 2019 at Hostel Tropicana.

The training is free but I would like to request that the cost for lunch and snacks be sourced from the funds of the Research Center allocated for the conduct of such activities.

Abstract

The study found out the attitudes of the Filipino learners toward Spanish. Anchored on Gardner and Macintyre's (1993) Socio-educational Model that looks at among others, the students' attitudes toward a foreign language, the study hypothesized that there is no significant difference among the varied perceptions of the students toward Spanish; and, there is no significant difference among the varied attitudes of the students toward Spanish. Descriptive statistics – frequency, counts, and percentages and the Analysis of Variance (ANOVA) were used to determine the significant differences among the perceptions and attitudes of students. English was chosen by the participants as the most important language to learn and Spanish as their last choice thinking of these as useful languages when they go abroad to work. They perceived that Spanish is a "difficult" language. Majority thought of it as a "powerful," "productive," and "best" language. Overall result of the study showed that the hypothesis that says there is no significant difference among the varied perceptions of the students toward Spanish is rejected. The alternative hypothesis is thus accepted. This means that the participants had varying degrees of perceptions towards Spanish. It is suggested that Spanish, though not anymore familiar to the new generation Filipinos, remains a highly-esteemed language. The positive findings reflected the Filipino's interest in learning a new language for the purpose of going abroad. It also indicates their compliance to learning foreign languages as part of their program in college.
